History of the University

Founded by American public education pioneer Horace Mann in 1840, Bridgewater State University has grown from its first home – a single room in the basement of Bridgewater Town Hall – to become the largest of the nine Massachusetts state universities and the third largest of the 29 public college and university campuses in the commonwealth.

Approximately 11,000 full-time and part-time undergraduate and graduate students are enrolled at Bridgewater; the full-time faculty numbers 306, representing a net gain of more than 50 since fall 2002; and more than 90 undergraduate and graduate programs are offered by the university's five schools (School of Business, School of Education and Allied Studies, School of Humanities and Social Sciences, School of Science and Mathematics and School of Graduate Studies). The 270-acre campus is home to 38 academic, administrative and residential buildings.

Alumni and friends have raised more than $17 million to support faculty and student research, a myriad of undergraduate and graduate scholarships, international study opportunities and award-winning publications. These private investments complement growing levels of public support for the institution.

In recent years, the university and the commonwealth have committed nearly $3 million for classroom upgrades, $7 million for an extensive library renovation, $38 million for a new residence hall and a top-to-bottom renovation and expansion of two residence halls. The university is constructing a $98.7-million science facility.

Vital to the long-term success of the institution is its recognition throughout the state and nation as an educational leader in the use of technology to improve teaching and learning. The first step in that direction took place in 1992, when Bridgewater secured a $10-million federal grant to build the John Joseph Moakley Center for Technological Applications. For two consecutive years, Yahoo! Internet Life magazine named Bridgewater among the "100 Most-Wired Universities and Colleges in America," and the university earned the number six spot on Intel Corporation's "Most Unwired College Campuses Survey."

Together, these developments have combined to strengthen the university's academic mission and expand its public service role. They were built on a series of initiatives that trace back to 1960, a watershed year in the life of the institution when a full-scale transition from an exclusively teacher-training institution to a comprehensive liberal arts university began.

Until that time, Bridgewater had been relatively small – approximately 500 students – but enjoyed a national and international reputation for excellence in teacher preparation. The preparation of the next generation of quality teachers remains a top priority, as evidenced by the institution's 50-plus years of continuous accreditation by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education.

During its time as a normal school, countless faculty and administrators nurtured the school carefully, despite varying degrees of support from the state, and overcame a host of difficult and sometimes dire situations, including a disastrous fire in 1924 that destroyed several of the few buildings that existed on the campus at that time.

While the institution's earliest years were times of great challenge, the efforts never flagged to continue strengthening the curriculum, and each succeeding generation left Bridgewater State University stronger than the generation that went before. The thriving and dynamic institution we see today is the best evidence of the success of that enduring commitment.

Mission of the University

As the comprehensive public university of Southeastern Massachusetts, Bridgewater State University has a responsibility to educate the residents of Southeastern Massachusetts and the commonwealth, and to use its intellectual, scientific and technological resources to support and advance the economic and cultural life of the region and the state.

While maintaining its historic focus on the preparation of teachers, Bridgewater provides a broad range of baccalaureate degree programs through its School of Humanities and Social Sciences, its School of Science and Mathematics, its School of Education and Allied Studies, and its School of Business. At the graduate level, the university offers the Master of Arts and Master of Science in select disciplines, as well as the Master of Arts in Teaching, the Master of Education, the Master of Public Administration, the Master of Science in Management and the Master of Social Work. In addition, Bridgewater State University prepares current and future educators for post baccalaureate and post master's licensure.

Through the extensive information technology and distance education resources available at Bridgewater State University, including the unique John Joseph Moakley Center for Technological Applications, the university has made technology an integral component of teaching and learning on campus, and seeks to become the regional center for the enhancement of teaching through technology for PreK-12 teachers and university faculty.

The university's growing number of innovative academic programs helps to ensure that Bridgewater State University students are prepared to think critically, communicate effectively and act responsibly within the context of personal and professional ethics. For example, BSU's Academic Achievement Center, and particularly its first-year advising program, is often cited as a model for other institutions to follow. At the same time, the Adrian Tinsley Program for Undergraduate Research represents unparalleled opportunity for students to work closely with faculty mentors and to present research and creative work at regional and national conferences.

Bridgewater State University benefits greatly from Connect, its regional partnership with other public higher education institutions in the region – the University of Massachusetts at Dartmouth, Massasoit Community College, Bristol Community College and Cape Cod Community College. Connect functions as a vehicle for coordinating the academic, administrative and development activities of public higher education in Southeastern Massachusetts, and introduces shared activities and programs among member institutions.

Profile of First-Time Full-Time Freshmen BSU Students and National Peers, Fall 2009 Based on Results of the CIRP (American Freshman) Survey

For the past 18 years, Bridgewater State University has participated in the study of new college students sponsored by the Cooperative Institutional Research Program (CIRP) at UCLA's Higher Education Research Institute (HERI). Begun in 1966, CIRP is a longitudinal study that forms the basis of the American Freshman series of books. For the Fall 2009 study, 219,864 first-time full-time students from 297 colleges and universities participated. At Bridgewater State University, 1487 first-time, full-time freshmen completed the CIRP survey during their freshmen orientation session the summer prior to starting school.

The Fall 2009 results of the CIRP survey are reported on the next several pages. Results are reported for Bridgewater students and their "national peers" -- students attending other public, medium selectivity, four-year colleges. In Fall 2009 Bridgewater's peer group was comprised of 10,728 students from 23 institutions. Comparisons are made between Bridgewater students and their national peers; when relevant, trends over time and gender differences are also reported.

There is an important difference between the CIRP data displayed in these pages and the data from previous years. In the past there have been numerous variables on which there was a substantial difference between BSU freshmen and their same-gender national peers. This year for the first time, many of the differences between BSU students and their national peers have diminished and some have disappeared. The principal remaining difference between BSU freshmen and freshmen at similar institutions nationwide is financial: BSU students continue to be more cost-sensitive in their college choice, more likely to have worked (and worked long hours) in high school, more likely to rely on their own earnings to support college expenses, and more likely to expect to work while they are enrolled. BSU's freshmen women are more likely than either BSU men or peers nationwide to express concern about whether they will be able to afford college expenses.

The CIRP results are reported in three broad categories:

- High School Grades
- Students' Self-Assessments of Academic Abilities

Background Characteristics of BSU First-time Freshmen and National Peers Fall 2009

Overall, the personal and family characteristics of BSU's first-time freshmen are very similar to those of their peers at other similar institutions nationally. They are similar in age, gender, race, citizenship, native language, type of high school, family income, parents' education, and political orientation. They differ, however, in race, religious affiliation, and distance from home to college. BSU freshmen are more likely than their national peers to be white, to live within 100 miles of the college, and to be Roman Catholic.

High School Grades Reported by BSU First-time Freshmen and National Peers Fall 2009

While the median self-reported high school grade average is the same (B) for both BSU freshmen and their national peers, there are differences at the margins. BSU freshmen are much less likely to report having grades of A- or higher. Twenty-nine percent of students in the national group report an A/A- average compared with only 17% of BSU students.

Students' Self-Perceptions of Academic Abilities, 2003 - 2009

The following three graphs display trends in the percentage of BSU freshmen and their national peers who rate themselves as “above average” or in the “top 10 percent” in the areas of academic ability, intellectual self-confidence, and drive to achieve.

Academic ability: In the national group, men always give themselves higher ratings than women by about 6 percentage points. In 2009, for the first time in the past decade, the differences between BSU students and their same-gender peers nationally have disappeared on this question.

Intellectual self-confidence: Men's self-ratings of intellectual self-confidence are higher than women's, both at BSU and nationally, and the national peer group tends to rate itself higher on this trait than do BSU students overall. The difference between BSU students and their same-gender peers was at its greatest in 2004 and has decreased in recent years.

Drive to achieve: This is a trait on which women tend to rate themselves higher than men, both at BSU and nationally. The difference between BSU students' self-perceptions and those of their same-gender peers has decreased over the past decade.

Self-Assessments of BSU First-time Freshmen and National Peers Fall 2009

BSU freshmen give themselves lower ratings than their national peers on most items. The largest differences come in the areas of intellectual self-confidence and emotional health.

Gender Differences in Self-Assessments of BSU First-time Freshmen, 2009

Nationally men tend to rate themselves higher on most traits than women do. This pattern holds true for BSU students as well. At BSU, women's self-assessments exceed men's only on drive to achieve and understanding of others. Men's self-assessments most exceed those of women in physical health, popularity, and intellectual self-confidence.

Self-Ratings on Traits Related to Diversity

In 2009 for the first time, CIRP asked students to rate themselves on a series of characteristics that relate to diversity. On each item BSU students' self-ratings were equal to or slightly higher than those of their national peers.

Political and Social Opinions of BSU First-time Freshmen & National Peers Fall 2009

Except for the issue of same-sex marriage, BSU students are similar to their national peers in their political and social opinions. This difference is likely attributable to the fact that BSU students live in a state where same-sex marriage is legal, and most of their national peers do not.

Reasons for Selecting College of Choice, Fall 2009

Differences between BSU First-time Freshmen and National Peers

About half (51%) of BSU's first-time freshmen say that BSU is their first-choice college, compared to 57% nationally. When asked why they enrolled at this institution, BSU students are more likely than national peers to say that the cost of attendance at BSU was "very important" factor in their decision, and about one fourth of BSU freshmen said that they chose BSU because they could not afford their first-choice college. Early Action/Early Admission is also a more important factor for BSU students than for their peers nationally.

Concern about Financing College by BSU Freshmen & National Peers, Fall 2009

As the table above shows, BSU students are more cost-sensitive than their peers nationally. The following graph shows that most students (at BSU and elsewhere) have at least some concern about financing college costs, and that more BSU women are concerned about this than their same-gender peers nationally.

Sources of Support for Educational Expenses, Fall 2009

BSU freshmen rely on many of the same sources used by their national peers to finance their education. However, BSU freshmen continue to be more likely than national peers to report reliance on income generated from summer work or work-study jobs and loans.

Expected College Activities of BSU First-time Freshmen & National Peers Fall 2009

BSU freshmen are similar to their national peers in their educational plans and academic and interpersonal expectations. BSU freshman are more likely than national peers, however, to expect to work to help pay college expenses, and to expect to participate in community service.

Highest Degree Aspirations of BSU Freshmen & National Peers, Fall 2009

The graph below shows the percentage of students whose highest degree aspiration is at least a master's degree. Women in both groups are somewhat more likely than men to have higher degree aspirations.

Future Education Majors and Teachers, Fall 2009

BSU women are more likely than either their national peers or BSU men to expect to major in education or to pursue a career in teaching. Since Massachusetts professional teaching certification requires a Master's degree, this may help to explain why BSU women are also more likely to aspire to graduate school, as shown above.

Life Objectives of BSU First-Time Freshmen & National Peers Fall 2009

The top five life objectives of BSU freshmen are identical to those of their national peers, though they appear in a different order. These have been the top five objectives every year for the past 18 years. This year "raise a family" remains the top spot among BSU freshmen while "be very well off financially" is the top objective among peers.
